

Career Values Audit

LAUREN FINE, MD · LAURENFINE.COM

05

"Before you decide what to do next, you need to know what actually matters to you."

Most people make career decisions based on what they think they should value — salary, status, stability. This audit helps you identify what you actually value, find the gap between your current role and your ideal, and make your next move from a place of clarity rather than reaction.

STEP 1 — RATE EACH VALUE (1=NOT IMPORTANT, 5=ESSENTIAL)

Then circle: C = current role, I = ideal role. Gaps between C and I show where friction lives.

Autonomy Freedom to make your own decisions	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Creativity Room to create, invent, express	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Impact Making a real difference for others	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Security Stability and predictability	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Growth Continuous learning and challenge	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Recognition Being seen and acknowledged	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Connection Meaningful relationships at work	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Purpose Work that feels meaningful	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Flexibility Control over when/where you work	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Income Financial reward and advancement	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Leadership Influencing and developing others	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Expertise Becoming deeply skilled in something	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Variety Diverse tasks and challenges	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Collaboration Working closely with others	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Competition Striving to win and excel	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Service Helping and supporting others directly	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Integrity Work that aligns with your ethics	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Adventure Risk, novelty, new experiences	1 2 3 4 5 C I

Status How you see yourself	1 2 3 4 5 C I
Balance How you want to live	1 2 3 4 5 C I

Step 2 — Gap Analysis

List your top 5 values by score:

Which of your top 5 are NOT being met in your current role?

What does the gap between C and I tell you about where friction comes from?

Which values are you honoring by staying where you are?

Which values would you be honoring if you made a change?

Step 3 — What This Means for Your Next Move

THE VALUES CONFLICT I'VE BEEN LIVING WITH:

WHAT A VALUES-ALIGNED ROLE OR PATH WOULD LOOK LIKE:

ONE THING I COULD CHANGE RIGHT NOW TO HONOR MY VALUES BETTER:

WHAT I'M WILLING TO TRADE OFF — AND WHAT I'M NOT:

MY ONE-SENTENCE VALUES STATEMENT:

READY TO GO DEEPER?

Ready to make a values-aligned move? Book a free discovery call at laurenfine.com laurenfine.com/coaching · reasondxcoaching@gmail.com